

LEARN MAN HELD HERE IS CONVICT

Oho Authorities Want George Martens, Who Confessed to Burglarizing D. N. Simonson Home.

SAY HE ESCAPED FROM PRISON

Chief Miller Declares He Will Be Tried Here and Not Turned Over Until He Serves Term.

George Martens, held to the grand jury for burglary, confessed prowler who stole $1,000 worth of jewelry and wearing apparel at the Devore N. Simonson home, 914 Second avenue, is an escaped convict.

Chief Miller said today Martens would not be turned over to Ohio authorities.

"We will keep him here and prosecute him. He stole hundreds of dollars worth of stuff and should get a stiff sentence. After he gets through serving time in Joliet, Ohio can have him," the chief said.

Business of bailing the cap is poor speed. Two Iowa City couples tried it last night and each member of the party paid for it today. Patrolman Berry met the four at Twenty-third street and Third avenue. They were a little laid back and he investigated the trouble. One of the men had a bottle of beer in his possession. On questioning, the man said he got it in Rock Island yesterday. The patrolman queried him further to discover the place it was sold when the other male member of the party interposed saying the beer was purchased Saturday which eventually was discovered to be the truth of the matter. Each of the four paid $5 for disorderly conduct. They gave the names of Harry Jones, Carrie Jones, James Anderson and Ella Anderson.

Robber's Officer.

C. R. Tucker of Moline offered so much resistance when he was arrested by Patrolman Smith Saturday night he was compelled to pay a fine of $10 to-day in charge of assaulting an officer, where otherwise he would have been let off lightly on disorderly conduct charge.

Paul Johnson of Des Moines was assessed $10 today for driving his machine into a crowd of people boarding a street car on Second Avenue Sunday night. Motorcycle Officer Ballard arrested him.

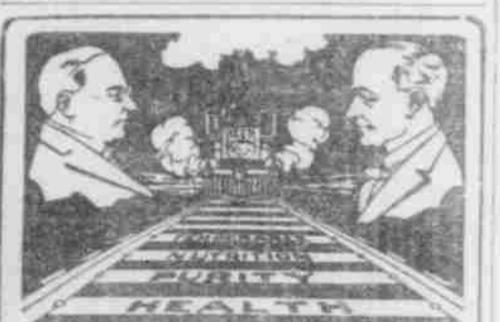

MRS. MAY'S LETTER TO WOMEN

More Proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieves Suffering.

Chicago, Ill.—"I suffered from bad case of female illa—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended and I took about six bottles. It fixed me up all right. The common symptoms of such a condition—pain when walking, irritation, bearing down pains and backache, nervousness and disordered digestion—soon passed away. I look much better now than I did before, and I recommend the Compound every time for female troubles, as it did for me all it is claimed to do. You have my permission to publish this letter." Mrs. J. MAX, 3548 S. Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill.

If you have any of the symptoms mentioned in Mrs. May's letter, remember what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for her, and try it yourself. It is a good old-fashioned medicine, made from roots and herbs, and it has helped countless numbers of women.

If you need special advice, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Andrew Larson of 400 W. 14th Street has been a witness in of interesting episodes, none of which approached the one he witnessed last night in Rock Island yesterday. But since Andy is familiar with his own characteristics and his friends and well that no one is willing to attempt the task, he is calm with composed looks while the clothes are still drying on the piano.

"A good cold plunge will cure the pangs of the stiffest," he has often pronounced.

"If I ever get into it, I'll be all mixed up myself at the least. Last night the tide had come in. While Ed had a search on for someone to pass a session or some of his songs and for relief, the occasion had arrived for him to put the frigid water theory to a test.

He selected the Mississippi River at the foot of Twenty-ninth street. As there was no diving board available he chose to run and jump in the hopes of striking deep water. He did. No sooner had the water come up around him than there was a coming up and a sucking. Ed Anderson, after he was attracted by the noise, thought a whale had captured his hero.

But when Ed saw that a man was in the water he prepared for action. And when he noticed that the person was his friend, Andy Larson, he was urged on, double quick time. Ed succeeded in pulling Larson to shore.

Andy shook out a paw, and exclaimed as he spluttered out a mouthful of muddy water:

"Gee, it worked!"

"What?" his rescuer asked, amazed.

"The theory," Andy exclaimed exuberantly.

"Theory? Are you drunk?"

"No, but I was. I took the plunge to get rid of the fat."

The police were called and Andy was taken to headquarters in the ambulance. His clothes were removed and they were still dry at the starting today.

Will Be Released.

Police said Andy at first told them that he had had only two pints last night, but later admitted having had a little "red eye" along with the beer. He will be turned loose.

ORDERS PICTURE OF WILSON PLACED UP

Decatur, Ill., Oct. 2.—"I am the man who ordered the flag and President Wilson's picture placed back up," said H. C. Ellinger, master mechanic at the Wahash shop in Decatur today. Over two hundred employees of the shop had threatened to walk out unless the flag and picture, which had been taken down were replaced. Assistant Master Mechanic J. F. Green gave the orders to take them down and Ellinger saved the day and prevented trouble by ordering them replaced.

FORD'S STAND FOR WOODROW WILSON

Detroit Auto Manufacturer to Do All Possible for Reelection of the President.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 2.—Henry Ford, the man with the courage of his convictions, has come out strongly for the reelection of Woodrow Wilson. As Mr. Ford has a tremendous following in the United States, his announcement that he will support the president is the political sensation of the day.

Mr. Ford will not merely vote for President Wilson, but he is going to do a lot of advertising for him throughout the country.

One reason that Mr. Ford, who is a republican, will not support Mr. Hughes is that Mr. Hughes is receiving his strongest feelings of loyalty from the Roosevelt and Representative George Gandy of Massachusetts, who are regarded as his friends investigating evidence that he also was a stockholder in a war trader.

When Congressman Gardner was investigating before a committee of congress shortly before adjournment, he was confronted with a telegram he had sent on Aug. 20, 1915, in which he said if he were president he would have convened congress and recommended that war be declared against Germany.

At a previous committee hearing Representative Tammie of Illinois brought out the fact that Representative Gardner, the man who started the recent wave of "preparedness" agitation, was himself a stockholder in a war trafficking concern when he started the agitation; that his wife and daughter are stockholders, and that his first cousin, George P. Gardner of Boston, is a director of one of the large war trafficking firms.

It has been rumored that in the event of the election of Mr. Hughes, Representative Gardner, or his father, in-law, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, who insisted before the Senate lobby investigating committee that he also was a stockholder in a war trader.

Mr. Ford does not want to see any man who is far from excessive preparedness or war in the saddle at Washington.

Mr. Ford does not entirely approve of President Wilson's administration but believes that Mr. Hughes would be far more dangerous to the peace of the nation.

"I'm for Wilson," Ford said, "because he is onto the interests—the unseen hands—that seek to control government—and is holding them off."

The republicans are raising a great roar about the eight-hour law and how it will hamper business. I say—and I say from experience, not from guesswork—that the eight-hour law will help business. Business men and employers who are hostile to the eight-hour day do not know their business.
